Santa Barbara, CA. Wednesday, February 22, 2017* – Since no one can fill the seat of our speaker, multi-talented entertainer Alan Thicke, The Lobero Theatre Associates invite you not to attend their annual Hats Off Luncheon as originally planned. Instead, the Associates ask their supporters to contribute to the Lobero's "Raise the Roof" campaign for needed repairs to the historic theatre's roof.

A gift of $200+ entitles 1 ticket to a cocktail reception on Lobero stage on March 15 from 5:30-7PM to raise a glass in honor of Alan Thicke. Learn more about this Hat's Off evening at www.lobero.org/events/hats-off-2017, and make a gift in Alan Thicke's honor. To make a gift or inquire about sponsorship opportunities, please contact Jessica Simon at jsimon@lobero.org or at 805.679.6007.

Alan Thicke, a Canadian television host and actor best known for his role as the father on ABC's Growing Pains, died on December 13 at the age of 69. Thicke, who kept a home in the Carpinteria foothills, once served as emcee for the Lobero Theatre Associates' 2005 Hats Off luncheon honoring Bea Arthur. As a headliner and speaker, Alan's distinctive charm and humor established him as one of America's all-purpose entertainers. Alan is survived by wife Tanya Callau and sons Brennan, Robin and Carter.

Hats Off is the Lobero Theatre Associates' signature fundraising event that raises needed funds for the Lobero Theatre while honoring a significant presence in the arts. The Lobero Theatre Associates' hard work and dedication have given the Lobero a beautiful courtyard, the Steinway Grand piano, and they actively support

Lobero youth programs, bringing thousands of students to the theatre each year. Co-chairs for this year's event are Danielle McCaffery and Rhea Hayes.

The Lobero Theatre Associates have been committed advocates of the Lobero Theatre for over 40 years, contributing over $1 million to ensure the Lobero Theatre remains a vital and enduring home for the arts in Santa Barbara. This season the Associates are working to raise needed funds to support the Lobero's many youth programs. By purchasing a ticket, or becoming a sponsor of this year's Gala, attendees will help the Associates once again reach their fundraising goal in support of the Lobero Theatre.
