He was an official photographer at the Monterey Pop and Woodstock festivals, and his work has appeared in The New York Times, Los Angeles Times, Life, People, Rolling Stone, High Times and Billboard. "I am amazed at the accumulation of images that has resulted, simply by doing what I love to do, day after day after day," Diltz says. "It's a result of being with countless people over the years, waiting at the sidelines for the moment to happen. Photography has been my passport, and I have arrived in the present, where I have always been, camera in hand."

Joel Bernstein is an acclaimed photographer whose work chronicles the inner lives and public moments of important singer-songwriters and performers including Joni Mitchell, Neil Young, Bob Dylan, Bruce Springsteen, Prince, Jackson Browne, Laura Nyro, Tom Petty and many others. His work is included in the permanent collection of the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame and Museum, and he has been published in a in The New York Times, Time, Rolling Stone and Vanity Fair. "As a photographer, Joel shoots like a fellow musician," says Cameron Crowe, director of Almost Famous and Jerry Maguire. "Bernstein blends in, using all the resources of his understanding of the songs, the instruments, the subject, and the people. There is soul and movement and most of all, music, in every one of Joel's images."

Hale Milgrim started his musical journey behind the counter at Isla Vista's Discount Records, and has spiraled upward through a succession of positions at major record labels, leading eventually to a stint as the President/CEO of Capitol Records. Since returning to Santa Barbara with his wife Anne, he has continued to work and support local music (including Sings Like Hell), and hosted a Sunday radio show, "Go to Hale," which aired for over six years on KTYD.
