Singer-songwriter, KT Tunstall enchants and engages with every song, and that's why she continues to resonate not only among fans, but throughout pop culture at large. Scotland born and now Los Angeles-based, KT Tunstall emerged with her 2004 classic debut Eye To The Telescope which featured international hits "Black Horse and the Cherry Tree" and

"Suddenly I See," which won the Ivor Novello Award for Best Song in 2006. That same year she won her first BRIT Award for Best British Female Artist, and earned Grammy and Mercury Prize nominations in 2007. KT has also been awarded the Inspirational Artist gong at the Women In Music Awards and was chosen as the first-ever female Grand Marshal (following the likes of Sir Sean Connery) to lead April 2018's annual New York Tartan Week parade. Earlier this year, KT Tunstall headlined shows in the U.S., including sets at New York's legendary Madison Square Garden - supporting Hall and Oates, and performed with Jools Holland across Europe.

KT Tunstall has released six acclaimed albums to date: Eye to the Telescope (2004), Drastic Fantastic (2007), Tiger Suit (2010), Invisible Empire // Crescent Moon (2013), KIN (2016) and WAX (2018). Additionally, she has written songs featured on major motion picture soundtracks including "Boy" for The Kid, "Miracle" for Winter's Tale, "We Could Be Kings" for *Million Dollar Arm and more, cementing her reputation as a major recording talent, as well as a mesmerizing live performer.

The Lobero Theatre is one of the oldest theaters in the country. For almost 150 years, the Lobero has featured some of the world's greatest artists. Since closing its doors to limit the spread of COVID-19, the theater has lost over $1 million in critical earned income. Like every theater, nightclub, and performing arts center in America, The Lobero faces an uncertain future. When ultimately allowed to reopen, The Lobero and others will need to survive with reduced occupancy, in order to safely social distance. A great many venues are likely to disappear, before ever getting back to live audience.

Live from the Lobero Producer/Director Byl Carruthers brought The Lobero a concept of "contactless performances" to be live-streamed as inexpensive Pay-Per-View concerts. Carruthers says, "Since the pandemic started, the artists' free "live streams-from-home" have helped us all get along, but venues and artists need a sustainable model to survive!" He adds, "We're hoping to create a template that can work for The Lobero, and others, as well."

Carruthers' safety-centric production model involves a forensically small crew using various assigned entrances. In addition to PPE, temperature, and symptom checks while entering the building, all crew members will bring their own food and remain in their specific space for the entire production. Some of the technicians perform their tasks from individual rooms. Others never come within 15 feet of the artists. They are only to leave their room, or position, to use one of the eight assigned bathrooms and stalls. After set-up, the day before show day, the stage, doors, hallways, and rooms, will all be disinfected to meet COVID-19 sanitation guidelines. On show day, no one other than the artist(s) walks on to the performance stage.

Artists arrive through stage doors and take their place on-stage, perform, and exit, without making any contact with the crew.
