A THOUSAND CASTS

Directed by Felt Soul

Throughout the course of Oliver White's life fly fishing has been at the root of a series of once-in-a-lifetime events. What started as physical therapy led to the financial district, a business opportunity, and a near-death situation. His pursuit of fish on the fly now takes him to the mythical, magical country of Bhutan to do what he does best – figure things out.

GRANDPA GORDON

Directed by Felt Soul

Gordon Eastman made a name for himself the hard way, scratching it out of the mountains while exploring, hunting, surviving, and ultimately filming the wild north. Fifty years later, Guy is retracing his Grandpa Gordon's steps in the same mountains in pursuit of a Dall sheep. He's driven by the Eastman spirit still alive in those mountains and pulled every step of the way by the will to live up to his grandfather's legacy.

RIVER PIRATES

Directed by Bimarian Films

The mission is simple: finish the race. It's 270 miles through Texas riverways ending in the Gulf of Mexico. 270 miles that are in no way straight, that are as inhospitable as only Texas can be, and afford no time for sleeping, only paddling. It's something that sounds so terrible it's appealing. After all, it's simple: finish the race. And don't go crazy.

THE CAPTAIN

Directed by Greg Kohs

She was just a little kid who wanted to go fishing with her dad. Raised on the salty sea, earning her keep on the lobster boat, and holding her own amongst fellow salty fisherman, Sadie Samuels is now the captain of her lobster boat and she's obsessed with her job. Boy, must be nice.

THE BALLAD OF PECOS HANK

Directed by Talweg Creative

Some people hunt deer. Some hunt tornadoes. Being a storm chaser takes Pecos Hank to places he never thought he'd go otherwise, like getting a behind-the-scenes tour of America. A character in his own story, Hank's fearlessness in his pursuit for the one monster that truly exists is punctuated by the opportunity of being right there when the community – his community – gets hit.

JUBILEE (Select locations)

Directed by Margaret Brown

What's fable for some is family tradition for others in the small coastal town of Daphne, Alabama. For a Jubilee to occur, it requires very particular conditions lining up: the tide, the moon phases, the wind, and not least of which, the vigilance of a community willing to walk the beach at all hours to see if it's there. For Miss Steph and this community, a Jubilee exists in the heart as much as it does in a whole bay's worth of crabs and flounder.

BEYOND SUNSET (Select Locations)

Directed by Keith Malloy & Jeff Johnson

It's easy to think that she just gets it from her father. After all, Roger Erickson is a legend in his own right on the North Shore, and she rides his boards – long, single-fin guns. But when Emi is out there, charging, riding 15 to 20-foot faces, and getting rag-dolled at Jaws, she deserves for you to know that yeah, maybe it's in her blood, but no one's on that board but her.

MALIK (Select Locations)

Directed by Chris Murphy & Max Lowe

You can't take great climbing photos from the ground. The hand reaching out to help Malik get up on the wall, and later out of South Memphis and into the mountains, was that of legendary alpinist Conrad Anker.
