LOBERO THEATRE

Dave Brubeck

Brubeck first played the Lobero Theatre in March 1953, just four years after starting the Dave Brubeck Quartet with Paul Desmond. At that time, his brother Henry was head of the Music Department at Santa Barbara High School and brought many of his students to see his brother play. Dave last graced the Lobero stage in 2009. The Lobero Brubeck Circle was created as an homage to our friend Dave Brubeck — to carry on a legacy of jazz education, keeping this uniquely American music alive in his honor.

Join the Circle

The Brubeck Circle is a tiered annual membership supporting amazing jazz, blues, and American roots performances on the Lobero stage by musical legends such as Herbie Hancock, Charles Lloyd, Wayne Shorter, Dianne Reeves, Regina Carter, Dr. John, Chris Thile, Robert Cray, Keb' Mo', and more.

Membership to the Circle also provides support for our local youth music education programs, creating future jazz musicians and audiences alike.

- The Brubeck Jazz Residency Program with The Derek Douget Band. Derek and bandmates work on-site with students (at local high schools, colleges, and non-profit organizations), who are also invited to a group jam session on the Lobero stage.
- Santa Barbara Vocal Jazz Foundation residencies at local elementary schools, which teach jazz history and appreciation, and include live performance opportunities.
- Music performances by local students on the Lobero stage, offering young musicians a professional performance experience with a skilled stage crew and state-of-the-art equipment.
